

Law of Large number

The law of Large number states that as the number of independent, identical trials increases, the average of the result approaches the theoretical expected value.

- Under certain Conditions:
 - Sample is randomly drawn
 - Sample size must be sufficiently large
 - Independent observations