

training loop

`zero_grad()` , the new gradients are added to the existing ones, resulting in approximately double the values from the first pass. Calling `optimizer.zero_grad()` resets the gradients, ensuring that the subsequent backward pass computes fresh gradients based only on the current batch, preventing unwanted accumulation